

OBP Policy on Traveling Exhibits

At the center of our mission are programs in support of educating the public about Oregon's Black history. These programs include oral presentations, displays, exhibits, and publications.

The use of traveling displays/exhibits provides a mechanism to extend this historic information to all parts of the state and country in a variety of venues of all sizes and financial abilities.

We recognize that due to the size of our larger exhibits, displaying them in their entirety is prohibitive for most venues. Therefore, we are developing smaller versions of our exhibits to make them more workable for smaller venues and in a greater variety of sites, including public spaces and for public events such as outdoor festivals.

In order to provide maximum opportunities for the public to view these exhibits while minimizing the financial burden to the sponsoring organization, rental fees for these exhibits will be charged on a sliding scale based on the size of the exhibit, development costs, and ability to pay, with a minimum cost of $500 per month.

If the sponsoring organization has extenuating circumstances or needs a subsidy to support its request, an exception can be granted at the discretion of OBP.

The exhibit fees are listed below:

Monthly: $500

A two-week rental: $250

Weekly: $125

Daily: $50
